

DRAUGHT HORSE SHOING WORLD CUP

The first Draught Horse Shoeing World Cup was held in 1991 at Isola NZ as the result of efforts by the New Zealand Farriers Association. The essential criteria was that traditional methods always be observed. It would be a team event with three members per team and would be open to all comers. The format for the programme of the Isola Competition was agreed to after consultation with Mr Edward Martin of Scotland who judged the event.

The 1991 competition was attended by over ten teams (three from Australia) and was won by the Australian team of Richard Calderero, Colin Smith and Carl O'Dwyer. Negotiations were then carried out between AFBA Qld Branch and the New Zealand Farriers Association - this association agreed to allow the competition to be run at Gatton, Queensland in 1992 providing all guidelines as set down by them were followed. Once again over ten teams participated. The judge was Mr David Wilson of Scotland and the competition was won by the New Zealand team of M. Telfer, K. Crafar and J. Bryant.

In 1993 the competition was held in Auckland, NZ and was co-judged by Alby Edwards of New Zealand and Keith Swan of Australia. The winning team comprised K. Crafar, G. Crafar and M. Tucker of New Zealand. Approximately 10 teams (two from Australia) competed.

After a lapse of six years the next competition was held in Kumeu, New Zealand in 2000. The judge was Mr Danny Mallander of England. The winning team comprised Steve Casey (England), Keith Swan (Aust) and Mark O'Leary (Aust). Seven teams competed (three from Australia).

The competition will now be conducted annually - alternating between New Zealand and Australia. In 2001 the competition will be at Gatton in conjunction with the Annual Heavy Horse Show. The judge will once again be Mr David Wilson of Scotland.
